

Long live International solidarity!

The Conservative Lib-Dem government has been attacking public services since they came into power. They aim to cut services from workers, teachers, nurses and other public sectors and save the bankers and bosses. This government announced war against the working class and we must get together to fight back and defeat them.

NUT, UCU, ATL and PCS members voted to fight back against government pension scheme reforms. The government attack is against all workers' rights in UK. All the Trade Unions members must fight back to defeat the Conservative Lib-Dem plans to reform pension schemes. A general strike by all workers and trade unions is the only way to defend our rights.

David Cameron has said to the media that 'These strikes are wrong!' That's because his government wants to attack our lives to support what he calls 'employees', in other words, the bankers and bosses.

The government always claims "we are all in this together" and "those with the broadest shoulders will bear the greatest burden" and yet the government ensures that it is ordinary working people who must pay the price for the financial crisis and not the corporations with the broadest shoulders which have caused it.

The capitalist system worldwide is squeezing the working class in an attempt to recoup their losses from the financial crisis. They are attacking us and we must fight back. The solidarity of workers, teachers and nurses all around the world will make us stronger to fight back for our rights.

We strongly support the strike action called by NUT, UCU, ATL and PCS members and condemn the Conservative – Lib-Dem's inhumane decision on public pension scheme reforms.
